

Tell Medical Schools What You Think

Matriculating Student Questionnaire

All your hard work has paid off, and you're entering medical school. We know you have opinions about the process that got you here—your premed experience, the medical school application system, how you chose your medical school. You probably have a few thoughts about your future, too, such as what type of medicine you might eventually want to practice.

We'd like to know what you think. With the Matriculating Student Questionnaire (MSQ), you can share your thoughts on issues such as why you chose medicine as a career goal to what specialty you're considering. Your medical school can use this information to help fine-tune their curriculum and programs to fit with your background and interests.

Did you know. . .that 20% of first-year medical students are considering Pediatrics as their specialty?

Since 1987, the MSQ has been helping medical schools understand what medical students need. The survey is easy to use and you can complete it from any computer with access to the Web. And don't worry - the survey is fully secure and individual responses will remain confidential. Reports derived from the questionnaire will not identify you personally unless you provide your consent for the purposes described at the end of the survey.

You'll spend the next few years listening to professors and administrators tell you what they think. Don't miss this opportunity to let them know your opinions! Help us make your medical education the best it can be.

To complete the Matriculating Student Questionnaire online please visit our Web site at www.aamc.org/msq