Getting Published in Medical Education

Presenter: Michel Atlas, MLS

University of Louisville School of Medicine

Publishing in the professional literature is a requirement in the academic environment. If you want to get published, you need to learn how to go about it. This workshop will go through the entire publication process. Learn about how to choose a journal and find and follow its rules to prepare the manuscript. Follow what happens after an article is submitted for publication. Ethical, copyright and practical issues will also be discussed.

2:00 pm – 4:00 pm

UofL SCHOOL OF MEDICINE

Simulation Tour and Demonstration

Presenters: Mike Goodrow, Jackie Krugler, MBA, Gina Wesley, PhD

See how we use different types of simulation at the University of Louisville School of Medicine! We will have a combined Standardized Patient / mannequin encounter and a demonstration of moulage application on a Standardized Patient. We will also demonstrate several mannequins and part-task trainers, and tour the simulation center.

A shuttle will run continuously from the hotel to the medical school beginning at 2:00 p.m. Meet the shuttle at the Broadway lobby entrance.

Quality Assurance Plans in Medical Education

Presenters: Steven Evans, MA, Karen McClanahan, MA,

Kerstin Peterson, MA, Martha Wilson, MA

University of Kentucky College of Medicine

Bonnie Miller, MD

Vanderbilt University School of Medicine

Evaluation and change are fundamental parts of medical education. To facilitate these processes, medical colleges may employ the business and manufacturing model of Quality Assurance. This model can be used to evaluate such things as faculty teaching (lecture, laboratory, and clinical), entire courses, student evaluations and facilities and make any necessary changes. This process can also be used to improve courses that already run smoothly.

Educational Scholarship and MedEdPORTAL

Presenters: Robby Reynolds, MPA

Association of American Medical Colleges (AAMC)

New forms of digital publishing have provided unprecedented opportunities for publication of scholarly works online. The Association of American Medical Colleges has developed MedEdPORTAL to serve as a prestigious publishing venue through which faculty might disseminate their educational works. MedEdPORTAL was designed to promote collaboration and educational scholarship by facilitating the exchange of peer reviewed educational materials, knowledge, and solutions. Publishing within MedEdPORTAL has several benefits for faculty including recognition of peer-reviewed work that may be considered by promotion tenure committees, useful feedback for enhancement or expansion of the resource, and expanding the audience of potential users.
