As part of the Health Professions and Nursing Education Coalition (HPNEC)’s ongoing efforts to educate Congress and the public about the effectiveness of the Health Resources and Services Administration (HRSA)’s Title VII health professions and Title VIII nursing workforce programs, and to celebrate the 50th anniversary of the programs in 2013, HPNEC is looking to expand the “Profiles of Success” collection and the short video collection of Titles VII and VIII in action.

“Profiles of Success”

HPNEC welcomes Title VII and Title VIII participants to feature in the “Profiles of Success” series, which demonstrates the importance of the programs in improving the supply, distribution, and diversity of the primary care workforce, and demonstrates the programs’ role in assisting aspiring and/or practicing health professionals in reaching their career goals. HPNEC will need:

- a photograph of the participant
- participant name, age, and background information
- program name and background information (and website address, if available)
- description of how the program was influential in the participant’s career goals
- a quote from the participant

“Then & Now” Profiles

HPNEC is creating a “Then & Now” profile series to build on the “Profiles of Success” series. “Then & Now” will feature where previous profilees are in their pursuit of a health profession; reflections on their participation in the Title VII or VIII program; and the impact the program had on their career. Please email Alex Khalife at akhalife@aamc.org if you are interested in participating in this new series.

Create a Short Video for the HPNEC YouTube Channel

HPNEC welcomes Title VII and Title VIII grantees, institutions, program directors, or program participants, to take short videos highlighting the programs in action. Taking a video is simple and can be done via iPhone, FlipCam, or other recording device. Videos should be a few minutes in length and can feature an overview of the program and why it’s important to the students and/or the community; an interview with the program director; and interviews with program participants. Please see the video profiles one-pager for more information and guidance on submitting a video, as well as a list of video prompts.
