

2021 GIR Service Award Winner

JILL JEMISON

Jill has been a leader in the GIR for many years. Jill is a friend and mentor to many people in the GIR. She is an articulate spokesperson and effective recruiter, helping to grow GIR's membership and facilitating active participation by those members. We can probably apply Bacon's Rule (or the Six Degrees of Kevin Bacon) if we consider how many people Jill has interacted with directly in the GIR. She frequently connects people across member institutions to align expertise that helps to build programs and careers.

Jill Kirsch Jemison is Chief Information Officer for Health Sciences at the Robert Larner College of Medicine at the University of Vermont with responsibility for infrastructure, application development, support, educational technologies. She is a member of Board of Advisors for the Center for Computer Security and Privacy at the University of Vermont. She is past chair of the Association of American Medical Colleges Group on Information Resources, former faculty director of the GIR Leadership Institute and was founding chair of the GIR Education Technology Working Group. She is currently a member of the GIR Diversity and Inclusion Working Group. She joined UVM in 2002 to lead the creation of the hybrid E-learning portion of the college's new integrated medical curriculum.
