In 2020, during the COVID-19 pandemic, Dr. Martin was also named recipient of the Notable Heroes in Health Care Award by BizTimes Milwaukee.

Dr. Martin has devoted much of his academic career to improving the delivery of emergency care globally through educational program development, investigative research, and direct patient care. At Duke University School of Medicine, he founded and led the Duke International Emergency Medicine Fellowship/Global Health Residency Program. At the University of North Carolina (UNC) School of Medicine, Dr. Martin established and led the Division of Global Health and Emergency Care (within the Department of Emergency Medicine) as well as the UNC Emergency Medicine Global Health and Leadership Program. In addition, at UNC School of Medicine, he served as Associate Director of the Office of International Activities and of the prestigious Simmons Scholars Career Development Program. Dr. Martin also served as Associate Director of the nationally-recognized UNC Emergency Medicine residency program.

Dr. Martin's research interests include elucidation of optimal models for emergency department-based HIV and hepatitis C testing as well as acute care disease burden epidemiology and impact of health systems change in the developing world. His research findings, and other global health-related initiatives, have culminated in a host of publications in high-impact, peer-reviewed journals. A skilled leader and accomplished academician, Dr. Martin enjoys a broad reputation – frequently presenting, on invitation, at national and international conferences.

Dr. Martin earned a Bachelor of Science degree from Duke University. He earned his Doctor of Medicine degree from Medical College of Pennsylvania-Hahnemann School of Medicine (now Drexel University College of Medicine) and his Master of Business Administration degree from UNC Kenan-Flagler Business School. Dr. Martin trained in Emergency Medicine and General Internal Medicine in the University of Maryland Medical System and R. Adams Cowley Shock Trauma Center in Baltimore – where he also served as Chief Resident.

Dr. Martin is board-certified in Emergency Medicine by the American Board of Emergency Medicine and in Internal Medicine by the American Board of Internal Medicine. For much of his career, Dr. Martin has maintained a clinical practice in the Emergency Department and on inpatient General Internal Medicine teaching wards.

Dr. Martin is a Fellow of the American College of Emergency Physicians and of the American Academy of Emergency Medicine.
