<sup>2</sup> Four applicants in 2013 and six applicants in 2014 who declined to report gender are not reflected.

<sup>3</sup> The "Non-U.S. Citizen and Non-Permanent Resident" category may include students with unknown citizenship.
