

AAMC Workforce Studies DATA SNAPSHOT

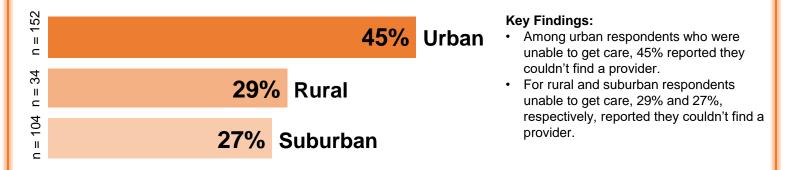

March 2019

Behavioral and Mental Health Care Among Urban, Suburban, and Rural Respondents: Differences in Reported Need, Reasons for Not Getting Care, and Travel Time

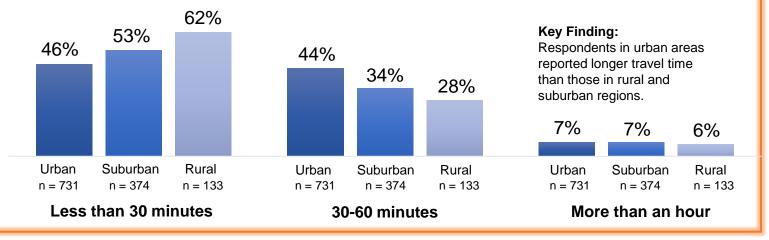

Urban respondents report harder time finding a provider.

Of those respondents who indicated they needed behavioral or mental health care but were unable to access care, not finding a provider was one of the top reasons among urban, suburban, and rural respondents.

Urban respondents who accessed behavioral or mental health care reported longer travel time to their provider.

Among respondents who accessed behavioral or mental health care, time spent traveling to provider:

Source: AAMC Consumer Survey of Health Care Access. Learn more at aamc.org/workforce. Authors: Sarah King, program specialist, and Kara Fisher, research analyst, AAMC Association of American Medical Colleges