ABOUT ACCJH

The Academic Consortium on Criminal Justice Health (ACCJH) was founded to advance the science and practice of health care for individuals and populations involved with the criminal justice system. The ACCJH Board of Directors is comprised of key leaders engaged in criminal justice health research, health career training, and clinical care delivery systems. Our vision is to be the academic home for criminal justice health researchers, educators, clinicians, and scholars. The goals of ACCJH are to:

- Foster networks and interest in criminal justice health for mutual sharing, innovative thinking, and creative problem-solving to move evidence-based practice initiatives into clinical realities.
- Promote innovative research and support dissemination of best evidence to inform criminal justice health practice through conferences, seminars, workshops, and other learning opportunities.
- Educate ourselves and the public about evidence-based practice through interagency partnerships within the criminal justice community.
- Influence behavioral and cultural change within correctional institutions, as well as across health care institutions, to build and retain an understanding of the clinical and policy issues related to best outcomes.

MISSION

To advance the science and practice of health care for individuals and populations within the criminal justice system.

VISION

To be the academic home for criminal justice health researchers, educators, clinicians, and scholars.

MEMBERSHIP BENEFITS

Be part of a vibrant academic community that validates your work in criminal justice health care!

ACCJH members will benefit from the resources of an academic community that conducts breakthrough research in correctional health care, and develops and promotes a broader and more critical view of the relationships between community and inmate health care. Membership has been tailored to meet the unique needs of individuals within this field, and it continues to evolve and adapt as practice and policy change. Individual and institutional members will also benefit from the following:

- Support for criminal justice health care, training, and scholarship in their home institutions.
- Development of trusting relationships with leaders in the field.
- Assistance and education to support the pursuit of research funding.
- Access to relevant criminal justice health information, news, and results.
- Access to a wide and expanding international network of criminal justice health academe and practitioners.
- Discounts for the Academic and Health Policy Conference on Correctional Health.
