Welcome to the #CFASChat on well-being in academic medicine! Introducing our hosts for the evening @mmabaza and @stuart_slavin

Let's get the CFAS Wellbeing Chat started. I want to welcome @stuart_slavin Senior Scholar for Wellbeing at the ACGME as my co-moderator. #CFASChat

Looking forward to my first tweet chat!

Q1: What are the biggest factors affecting your wellbeing in this crisis? Are they work related (front line work, virtual work, etc.) or other (family concerns, financial concerns, etc.) or all of the above? #CFASChat

Thank you @Alex_bolt1 and @mmabaza and @stuart_slavin - so glad you're going to #CFASChat tonight!

Gary Beck Dallaghan @GLBDallaghan
A1 My biggest concern throughout this has been my husband who works at a grocery store. So far he's tested negative, but a constant concern. #CFASChat

Aviad Haramati @adiHaramati
I am most concerned about our learners, students managing the virtual environment and limited clinical experiences

Stuart Slavin @SlavinStuart
@LilyBelfi @mhabaza @LilyBelfi I worry about our mom's as the pandemic stretches on. So much pressure, we need to do our best collectively to support them, not just with words but with action. #CFASChat

Alex Bolt @Alex_bolt1
We want to hear about issues around faculty well-being in particular and invite faculty members to send us articles/studies so we can post them to https://t.co/NhXcthDtxY #CFASChat

Atul Grover @AtulGroverMD

#CFASchat i agree...i think it's definitely tougher for the already have-less/nots. Tho i think the common perception is physicians, being well compensated, are immune; i think sadly makes physicians even less likely to voice their vulnerability

Eric Weissman @ermiwe

@AtulGroverMD I've wondered about that very issue regarding furloughs and budget cuts given COVID - how it affects a population that never imagined seeing financial security at risk. #CFASChat

Mona Abaza, MD, MS @mmabaza

@ermiwe @AtulGroverMD And doctors being less willing to talk about it can compound it #CFASChat

This was published today - highlights the type of leadership and morale sustainable that will be required in this prolonged pandemic. #CFASChat

@mmabaza I think we’d all benefit from a clear plan going forward. Shout out to @AAMCtoday for their recent efforts: https://t.co/dkJfI8w6yu. Wish we had something like this formalized across the country. #CFASChat

Stuart Slavin @SlavinStuart
@yoshimianzai @mmabaza @yoshimianzai So important to stay connected to those we love and extra effort may be needed to do so! Worth that effort though! #CFASChat

Atul Grover @AtulGroverMD
@akankshasi18 @mmabaza one thing i try and share with my mentees is my own #gratitude list ... all the things i’m grateful for having/being/not being every day. Never seems to hurt #CFASchat. Right now i’m grateful my kids are older and don’t have to be entertained/kept safe all the time

Eric Weissman @ermiwe
I believe, from talking to family, friends, colleagues, that people are experiencing something they can’t quite name or identify that borders on trauma... Even if they’re safe and secure, worried it will affect everyone’s wellbeing in the long term. #cfaschat

Stuart Slavin @SlavinStuart
@ermiwe .@ermiwe I think you’re right, there is a traumatic quality to what people are experiencing and I think we can turn to lessons from trauma-informed care to guide interventions. #CFASChat

Amy “VOTE!!!” Vinson, MD, FAAP @imswimming3
@SlavinStuart @ermiwe The @CSTS_USU Center for the Study of Traumatic Stress has some incredible resources, including stuff specific to prolonged pandemics. @JMorgansteinMD has done some great work in this regard. #CFASChat https://t.co/jmoBjNB7YL

Alan Dow @alan_dow
@LockeKeya @mmabaza Yeah, I wonder how this moment in history will change how our kids view the world for their entire lifetimes. #cfaschat

Eric Weissman @ermiwe
@alan_dow @LockeKeya @mmabaza I think it changes so much for so long about how work, interact, connect with people on all levels. #CFASChat
Stuart Slavin @SlavinStuart

Q3. What are the greatest sources of worry med students have right now and what can be done to address these? #CFASChat

Mona Abaza, MD, MS @mmabaza

@SlavinStuart For 4th years The application and match process this year.#CFASChat

Gary Beck Dallaghan‏ @GLBDallaghan

A3 One big worry I have heard is around residency interviews & the inability to do visiting electives. No idea how to address it right now #CFASChat

Stuart Slavin @SlavinStuart

@GLBDallaghan @UNC_SOM @GLBDallaghan, information flow is so important as is creating safe spaces for people to express their worries and needs. #CFASChat

Mona Abaza, MD, MS @mmabaza

@SlavinStuart Programs are at a bit of loss to be a big help too, as this is all new for them too.#CFASChat

Alan Dow @alan_dow

@SlavinStuart Amazingly, the students I chat with regularly seem to be tolerating social distancing much better than older folks. Maybe it’s a generational difference because of familiarity with technology? #CFASChat
Stuart Slavin @SlavinStuart
Q3. What are the greatest sources of worry med students have right now and what can be done to address these? #cfaschat

Gary Beck Dallaghan @GLBDallaghan
A3 Another concern from students is about their clinical training since they lost anywhere from 2 to 4 mos of their clerkships. #CFASChat

Atul Grover @AtulGroverMD
@GLBDallaghan i do think some specialties, like Urology, have done their best to create virtual away experiences...but it's different with no precedent in recent times for us to pull from. the added uncertainty is terrible for applicants.
#CFASchat
Stuart Slavin @SlavinStuart
Q4. How can medical schools better support the well-being of medical students of color? #CFASChat

Atul Grover @AtulGroverMD

Medical schools need to do much more to protect students of color from racism
CHRISTLE NWORA, MD
JULY 14, 2020

As an interviewee, I endured racist comments. In courses, I saw patients of color omitted from lessons. Here’s what medical schools need to do to address these ills — and create a culture that makes Black students feel truly welcome.
